COMPREHENSIVE ECONOMIC AND TRADE AGREEMENT (CETA)

CETA Factsheet 2 of 7

CETA and agriculture

How EU agriculture benefits

€3.4 bn

The value of annual EU food and drink exports to Canada<sup>1</sup>

9

Canada's ranking amongst the EU's food and drink export markets

91%

Share of food and drink products that Canada has liberalized from day one

18 500

Tons of cheese the EU will be able to export duty-free – twice as much as before

1. Cutting tariffs, opening quotas

CETA removes Canadian customs duties and opens up the Canadian market to European food and drink products.

Product	Tariff, quota or other barrier
	Before CETA	Now with CETA
 Cheese	Duty-free quota of 8 000 tons	Duty-free quota doubled to 18 500 tons over time
 Wine, spirits	Barriers to exporting EU products to Canada	Major barriers removed and clear framework to ease others
 Chocolate, confectionery	Up to 10%	0%
 Bread, pastries, biscuits	Up to 15%	0%

2. Protecting 143 Geographical Indications (GIs)

Promoting and protecting Europe's flagship food and drink products in countries outside the EU is a top priority for CETA, as for any EU trade deal.

CETA allows 143 European products with the status of Geographical Indications to be sold in Canada, giving them a similar level of protection from imitations as EU law does.

Some of the EU GIs that CETA protects

Wines, beers, spirits <sup>1</sup>		Cheeses		Meat and fish		Fruit, nuts, confectionery
Origin	Product	Origin	Product	Origin	Product	Origin	Product
Czech Rep.	České pivo	Netherlands	Gouda Holland	Austria	Tiroler Speck	Cyprus	Loukoumi Geroskipou
Italy	Chianti	Denmark	Danablu	Hungary	Szegedi szalámi	Greece	Elia kalamatas
Portugal	Porto	Italy	Parmigiano Reggiano	Sweden	Kalix Löjrom	France	Pruneaux d'Agen
Spain	Rioja	Portugal	Queijo S. Jorge	Germany	Schwarzwälder Schinken	Romania	Magiun de prune Topoloveni
